

Have you joined yet?

www.teachersunite.com is a non-profit website and network that has been set up to celebrate the work of teachers and to promote the importance of teacher health and wellbeing. A place of inspiration and community, it aims to bring people together, to remind them why teaching matters so much, and to share ideas for the future.

Concerned about teacher well-being?
Join teachersunite.com today and help create positive solutions.

'In our rush to reform education, we have forgotten a simple truth: reform will never be achieved by renewing appropriations, restructuring schools, rewriting curricula, and revising texts if we continue to demean and dishearten the human resource called the teacher on whom so much depends.'

Teachers must be better compensated, freed from bureaucratic harassment, given a role in academic governance, and provided with the best possible methods and materials. But none of that will transform education if we fail to cherish--and challenge--the human heart that is the source of good teaching.'

Parker Palmer - The Courage to Teach

www.teachersunite.com